About Davy

Born in the United Kingdom, Davy Wotton was introduced to fly fishing and fly tying in the 1950s by a schoolmaster. By the 1960s, Davy had already established himself as a professional fly tyer. He has since run successful fly fishing mail order businesses, developed and manufactured fly tying materials and products, worked in television, and produced his own series of fly fishing and fly tying DVDs. Davy is also a competitive fly fisher and has won many national and international events. Davy moved to the U.S. in the 1990s and now resides in the Ozarks of northern Arkansas, where he guides on the White River system and serves as the Managing Director of the American International School of Fly Fishing.
